FYI, David and Vince, this may be of interest. It didn't look like you were on any of the distribution lists.

Subject: Seeking your feedback -- AOP Technical Factsheet

Hello Everyone,

As you are likely aware, CSS has been advancing the development and application of the Adverse Outcome Pathway (AOPs) as an organizing framework across its research program and also in collaboration with program and regional partners for application to a range of screening, prioritization, and risk based evaluations.

While EPA has been at the leading edge of this research, interest in this area is growing at an unprecedented pace. Beyond the exuberance, the success of this approach and its enhanced application very much depends on broad and collaborative engagement across the international scientific community. To this end, we have begun a process for communicating, advancing, and integrating common understanding. As a first step, we – really, Gary Ankley, Dan Villeneuve, Steve Edwards, and Jill Franzosa -- developed a fact sheet that provides a good ‘conversation starter’ as we continue to work on communication/engagement/collaboration/learning across the international scientific community.

Please review and provide your feedback on this brief document (less than five pages with figures and references). Feel free to share with others in your organizations!

Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

Send your comments to Jill Franzosa and me by September 9th, if possible. As we work through this, we will of course accept other comments if they come in after that date, but we will keep moving forward to broaden our circle of convergence beyond ORD.

Any questions, please don't hesitate to reach out!

With kind regards,

Tina
